HACAWA 2006-07

Dedication to Dr. Mazak

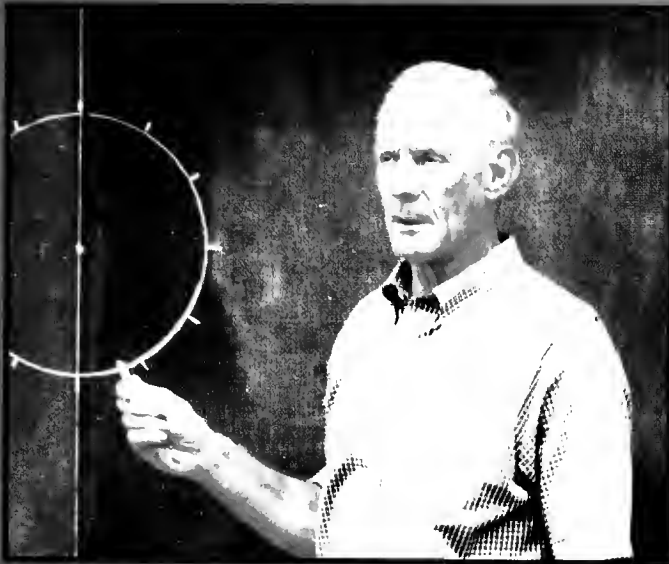

The yearbook staff would like to dedicate this year's yearbook to of Dr. Richard Mazak. He received his B.A. In Humanities in 1954 and his Theological Diploma from Concordia Seminary in St. Louis, Missouri 1958. He then moved to Texas where he received his M.A. and Ph.D. in Physics at the University of Texas at Austin in 1964 and 1968, respectively. Throughout the course of his education he learned to read six languages including German, Slavic, Russian, Greek, Hebrew, and Latin. In addition to his obvious affection for academia, Dr. Mazak has a passion for theology and has served as a Missouri Synod Lutheran minister. His faith is fervent and expressed frequently and freely both inside and outside of the classroom.

During his seventeen years at Lenoir-Rhyne College as an associate professor of Physics, Dr. Mazak has made a lasting impact on students and faculty alike. As a professor, Dr. Mazak has taught astronomy, astrophysics, beginning calculus, physics, modern physics, quantum mechanics, advanced mechanics, and environmental science. Of all of these, modern physics is his favorite. Through the Harlaxton program here at LR, Dr. Mazak taught classes at Harlaxton University in England in 1998. He has also made a number of publications and presentations during his time with us.

In his free time, Dr. Mazak enjoys running, swimming, lifting weights, playing tennis, golfing, and flying. Dr. Mazak and his wife, Betsy, live in Vale, NC. He has three children two daughters, Lynn and Pam, who live in Austin, Texas, and a son, Scott, a resident of San Francisco, CA.

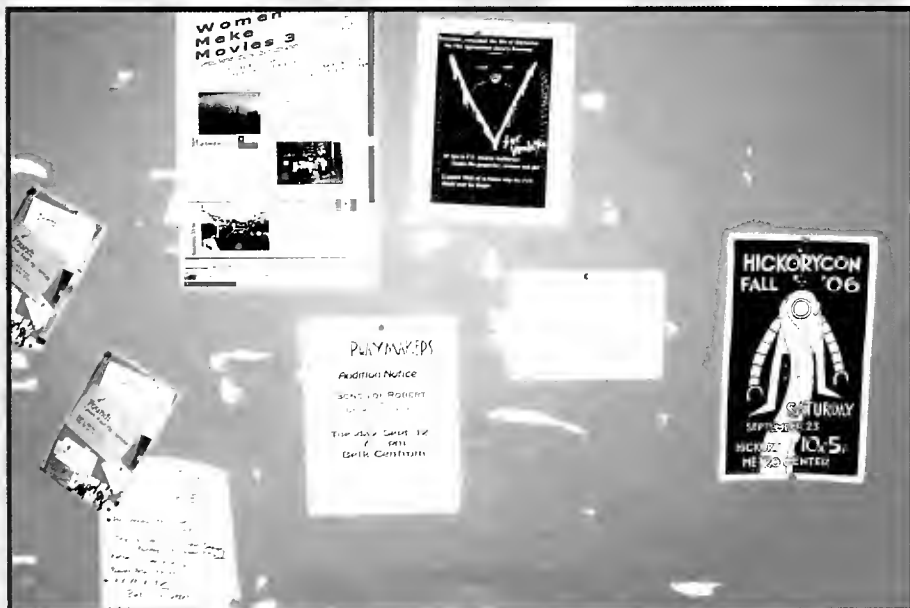

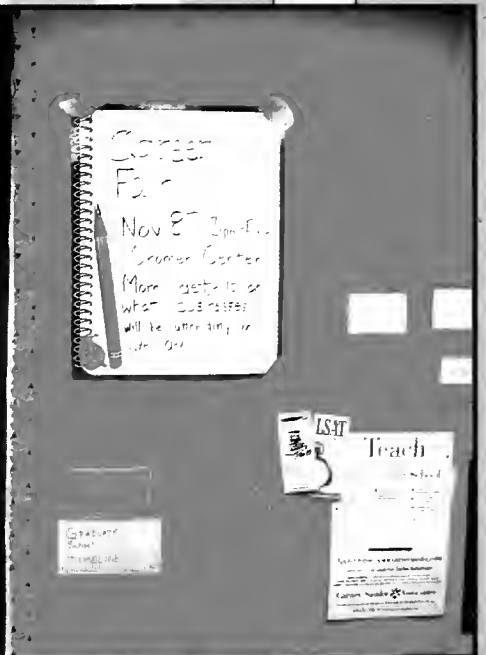

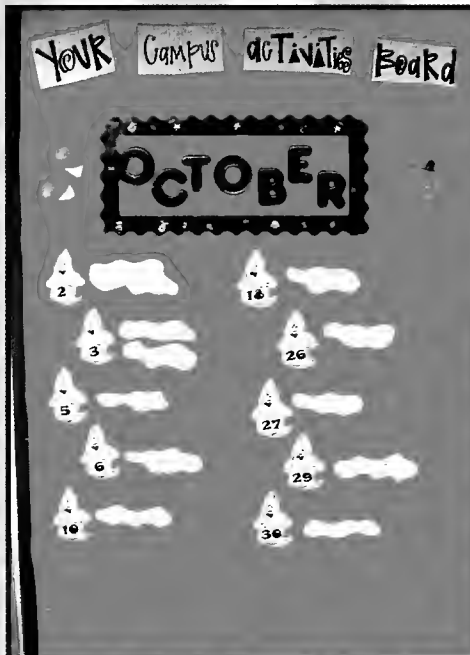

Taking the time to learn all of his students names, offering himself outside of class to students in need of additional help, and learning about his students personal lives are just a few of the things that make Dr. Mazak a truly memorable professor. What Dr. Mazak enjoys most about L-R are his students and the congenial atmosphere that allows student's abilities to bloom. He feels that God has blessed him through his work here at LR, and the feeling is reciprocal. We feel that God has blessed us in providing us with such a fine professor.

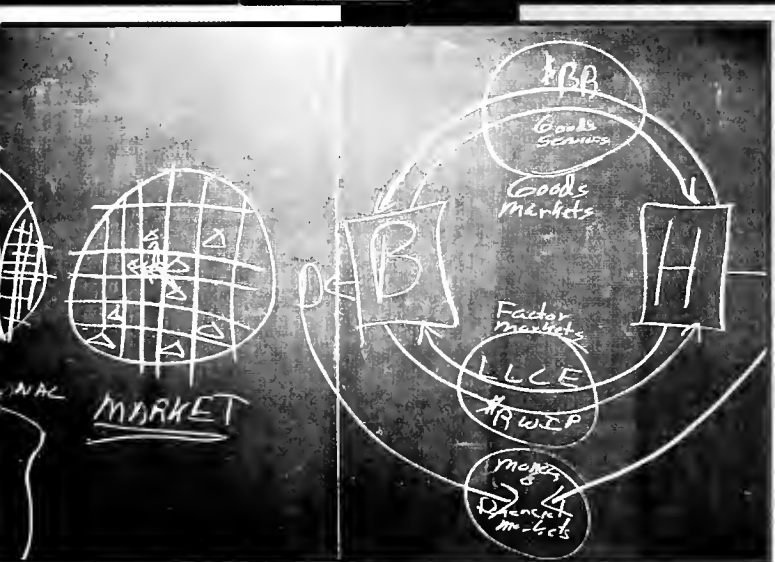

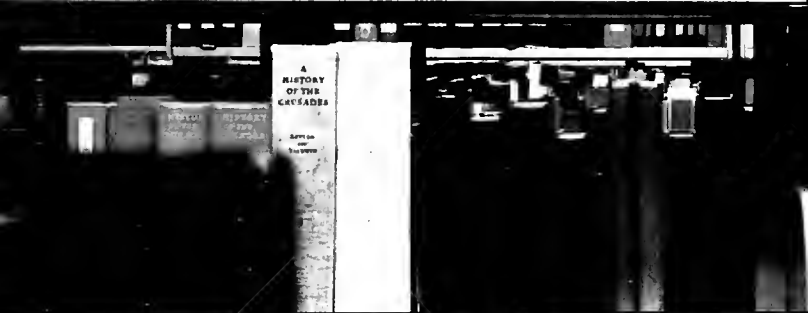

Dr. Mazak is an amazing Professor! He combines brilliance with humor to make Physics fun and engaging. Beyond this, he cares about Lenoir-Rhyne and its students. He is always willing to time out of his busy schedule to help students with difficult subject matter or just to see what's going on. I really appreciated this level of dedication during my physics Study at L-R.

DREAM A LITTLE BEFORE YOU THINK.

-TONI MORRISON

To the L-R Community:

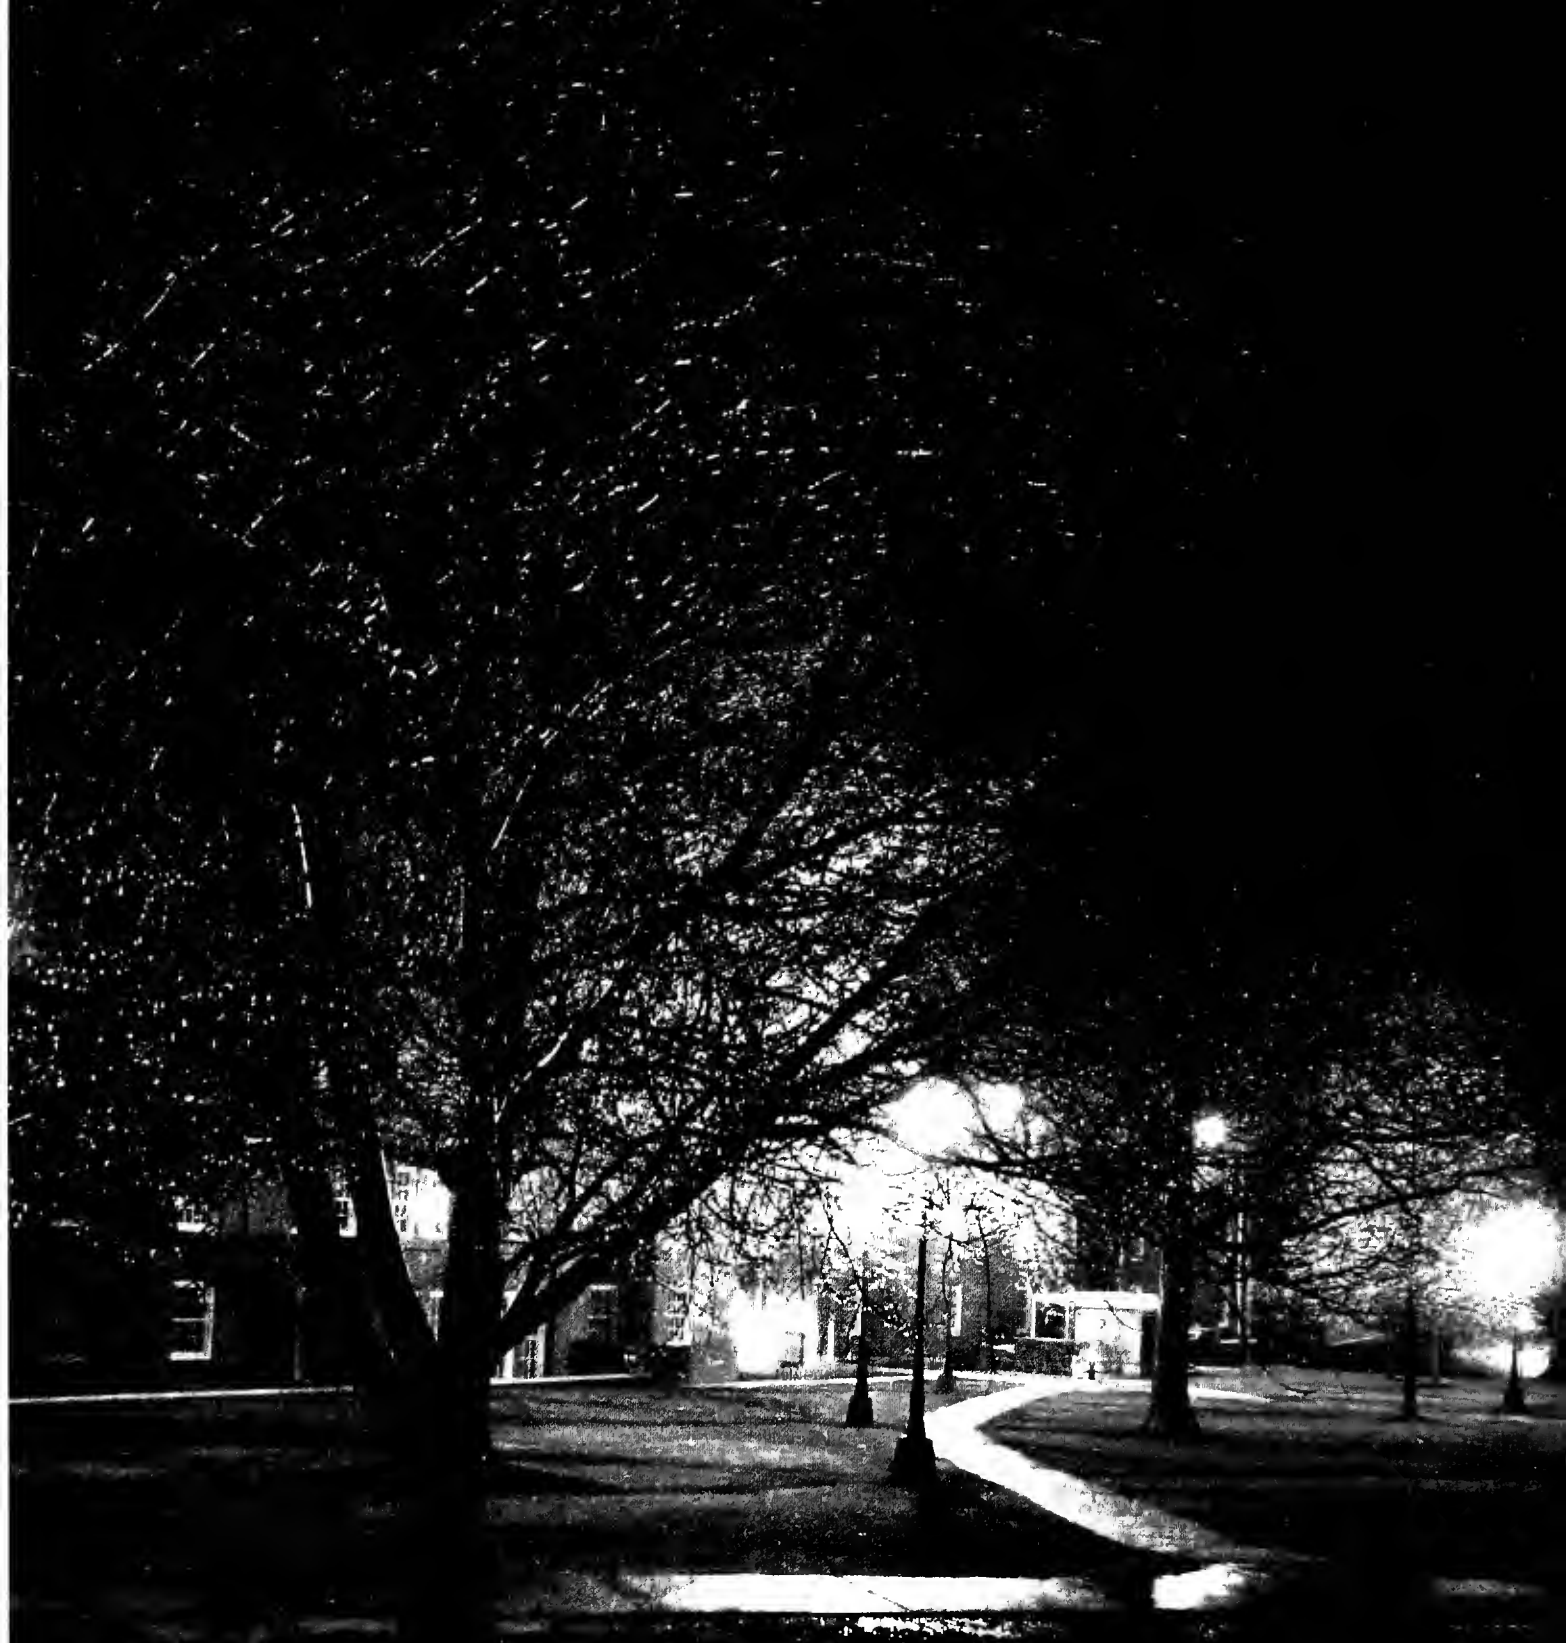

The yearbook is a written record of everything that happens during the academic year. This year the HACAWA (which stands for HALLs CAMPUS WALLs) staff decided to utilize a "scrapbook" theme to document the year. We've tried to record events at L-R in the same way that you record them yourself—through notes and letters, text messages and calendars. This year the HACAWA experienced many changes. A brand new staff and new advisor stepped in to try and save the HACAWA from the relative decline that it has experienced over the last decade. By all accounts we have succeeded. The book that you are holding testifies to this. It is 240 pages and the first all color yearbook that Lenoir-Rhyne has ever had. It was released in the Spring for the first time in at least five years. Our staff has worked hard on the 99th edition of the HACAWA. We hope that you enjoy it!

Sincerely,
Amy Greensfelder
Editor-in-Chief, 2006-2007

In the heat of September, Los Osos reunited and began the long process of getting in shape for the crowded tournament schedule in November. A new crop of folks, both women and men, joined to replenish losses from last year's winning side - and with seniors Chris DeCamp and Bryan Brickhouse back, the season looked to be the best yet, hands down. Custer's stupid Goofmobile, a rolling screwball advertisement for Los Osos, was finally retired & replaced by a proper car. RIP.

Fall Bid Day

Upperclassmen and transfer students interested in sororities signed up for Fall Rush. They attended parties hosted by all four sororities where they were able to meet the girls and learn more about the sororities. At the end of the week, Sigma Kappa, Kappa Delta, Delta Zeta, and Zeta Tau Alpha extended bids to girls who they desired to share the bonds of their sisterhood with.

On September 15, 2006 all of the sororities met in Shaw Plaza where they cheered for their individual sororities and welcomed the new girls who had accepted their bids. All sororities did equally well and recieved four girls each.

Reflections

I think that my first full month here has gone pretty well. It seems like it has been raining non-stop since I got here--I really wish that I had thought to pack my galoshes when I moved in! I have been studying incessantly, and my roommate is driving me crazy! It was so good to see my little sister and my parents on family weekend. I love this time of year!

GO BEARS!

The Lenoir-Rhyne homecoming 2006 will be one to remember. Spirited and excited fans filed into the LR stadium on Saturday afternoon. Hundreds of screaming fans made the team play their hardest. Even though the Bears did not bring home a win, they are still winners to the school and to the community.

The Sugar Bears take a break from dancing to pose for a picture. The dance team prepares a new routine to perform at the half-time show of every home game.

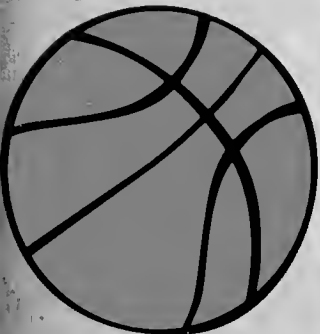

On Friday, October 27th a group of students were able to tour Highland Hall with an expert in paranormal investigation. After making an in-depth investigation of the building, he came to the conclusion that spirits weren't active in Highland Hall (at least not on that night).

Campus Activities Board

October & November 2006

Throughout October and November CAB provided an assortment of programming. A special week was included in late October that featured a wide range of Halloween activities including a murder mystery dinner theatre and an inflatable haunted house. CAB closed out its Fall programming in mid November with the always popular LR Idol. Contestants' song choices centered on, but were not limited to, popular country and R&B numbers.

Charlotte Bobcats

On Saturday, November 4th CAB subsidized the loss of Charlotte Bobcats tickets and took numerous students to the Bobcats arena to see them take on and win a match against the Cleveland Cavaliers.

Spirituality, Holiness, and the Saints

The Fourteenth Annual Aquinas-Luther Conference was by all accounts a success. The Belk Centrum was packed with students, clergy, and community members for lectures and discussions.

The Conference included presentations by Dr. Regis Martin, Dr. Amy Schiffrin, Dr. Ronda Chervin, and Father Patrick Henry Reardon.

Dr. Martin discussed the views of both St. Thomas Aquinas and Martin Luther.

Dr. Schiffrin discussed Luther's use of hymns in worship.

Dr. Chervin discussed various types of spirituality and the impact of each on our lives.

Father Reardon discussed the communication of God to the many people.

Was Greek Week a success?

Jimmy Rhine, a member of Theta Xi Fraternity, says, "Greek Week is always an interesting experience. In addition to allowing Greeks to come together, it always shows how much LRC Greek Life does for philanthropies both locally & nationally. Within the span of a week, students can learn about & help out groups that do everything from alzheimer research to child abuse prevention."

Halloween

One of the highlights of Halloween at Lenoir-Rhyne was a carnival for youth from the community. Members of Circle-K and some students who just felt like playing around joined in to run various games for the children. After the carnival, the kids added to their winnings by Trick-Or-Treating around campus.

Hole-in-one at the Putt-Putt stand!

A cute fairy and a good bowler too!

The kids weren't the only ones who got to have fun!

October Reflections

Dr. Yoder, professor of Theology, addresses the audience at the Aquinas-Luther Conference.

Dear Diary,

All of the Halloween festivities here on campus have me scared out of my wits! October has been awesome! My parents and my friends from home came up for homecoming, I'm acing all of my classes. The Aquinas-Luther Conference was really interesting (even though I was required to attend for class). I went hiking last week with the rest of my hall, and the leaves were GORGEOUS! I'm looking forward to fall break, but I'm going to miss L-R!

FALL RETREAT

Broyhill Leadership Institute

Created by a grant from the Broyhill Foundation in Lenoir, NC, the Broyhill Leadership Institute serves to develop the business, economic, and leadership skills of future and current LR students by hosting a variety of events on and off campus. Not only do students learn how to enhance and develop their leadership skills, they also get to spend a weekend at Kure Beach in the fall!

"The workshops and lectures at the Kure Beach retreat shed new light on my own leadership potential... and a weekend on the beach was a good escape from school. Professor Mauney, the director of the program, did an excellent job in helping us understand what it means to be a leader."

Halloween Contest 2006

While they are used to facing contests on the field, athletes delve into another kind of competition at their Halloween costume and pumpkin carving contest. Not surprisingly, they all turned out to be winners! This event, which took place on the night before Halloween, was a good bonding experience for the members as well as an opportunity to express their creative sides. One undisputed fact, however, was that it certainly got everybody in a festive mood for Halloween!

Above left: ladies & gentlemen, Mr. Andrew Rickel; Above right: Brick warms up... as much as one can do in 30-degree weather; Left: 'Street Fighter' is what one plays between matches.

The fall tourney season involved a pair of local competitions, at Duke University ("B-Devilled III", November 4-5) & Guilford College ("Biohazard", November 11-12). L-R's nemesis appears to be Appalachian State, who beat us at both (but upon whom we had sweet revenge on the second day at Guilford). At Duke, Los Osos lost two nail-biters to tourney finalists Ohio State, and another to UNCW, while we pummelled George Washington, Davidson "B", and Virginia Tech. It was a grueling tourney, with several close results. As for Guilford, there was a split over two matches with Ye Olde Enemy, App State, a narrow defeat by UNC Asheville, and victories over Radford, Goucher, & William & Mary.

In November the Democrats took control of both the House of Representatives and the Senate for the first time since 1994. Nancy Pelosi became the first female Speaker of the House, making her the highest ranking female in an elected office in the history of the United States.

Immigration was constantly in the news in 2006. There were bills in Congress to declare English the official language of the United States, bills that would make aiding undocumented immigrants a felony, and a bill passed that called for a barrier to be built along the Southern border.

IN THE NEWS

By the end of 2006, the number of American soldiers who had died in the war in Iraq topped 3,000. Deaths of Iraqi citizens were harder to determine with estimates ranging from 30,000 to 600,000.

Following Democratic success at the polls, Donald Rumsfeld, Secretary of Defense since 2001, resigned. Earlier in 2006 a handful of retired generals had called for his resignation; these requests were scoffed at by the Bush administration. On December 18th Rumsfeld's resignation took effect and Robert Gates assumed the post.

TOP NEWS STORIES OF 2006

On August 24, the International Astronomical Union created a new definition of the term "planet" that excluded Pluto from that category. Students who grew up with such mnemonic devices for the names of the nine planets as, "My Very Enterprising Mother Just Saved Us Nine Pennies" reacted strongly to the declaration.

A number of newsmakers died in 2006 including Gerald Ford, Coretta Scott King, Betty Friedan, and Slobodan Milosevic. Former President Ford died on December 26, 2006 at the age of 93.

In February 2006 Vice President Dick Cheney went on a quail hunting trip in Texas. During the trip he accidentally shot fellow-hunter Harry Whittington, a 78-year-old lawyer.

One of the final actions of 2006 was the December 30 hanging of former Iraqi President Saddam Hussein. The Iraqi interim government was responsible for trying Hussein for charges of crimes against humanity. His lawyers insisted throughout the trial that the court was not legitimate and that Hussein was still the Iraqi President. Hussein was found guilty in November.

Things I am Thankful For

1. My parents...they support me when I mess up.
2. My roommate...we're starting to get along a little better.
3. My Grandpa...he knows so much more than it seems that I could ever learn.
4. My car...although it has recently been making this really weird gurgling noise.
5. My professors...they have been pretty understanding about all of my "extenuating circumstances."
6. My friends...it's really great to have people that I care about around me all the time.
7. The caf...I might complain, but it's good to be able to go and get a meal whenever I want.
8. The Bears' Lair...for all those times that I'm not quite so thankful for the caf.

FINALS WEEK

Thankfully, no one at LR had need to stress over finals...after all, everyone was completely prepared...

Ashlee Goodie is not cramming--she is merely admiring a very well-bound book.

The only notes Kimberly Phelps, Andrea Dillon, and Elizabeth Burkhalter are comparing are what they took down from the previous night's episode of "Grey's Anatomy."

Far from studying, Jason Richbourg just stopped into the Cromer Lab to check Facebook.

INTRAMURALS

Fall Soccer

The Fall 2006 Intramural soccer season got off to a late start, but it wasn't long before the old rivalries had heated back up on the pitch. The "OX" came away with the title for the second year in a row, but faced serious competition from the Pi Kappas and VDK. Above: Bryan Blackhouse from VDK warms up on the soccer field before a match.

Fall Basketball

To complete a sweep of the intramural sport titles, the "OX" came away victorious in IM basketball. The main reason for this domination on the court... stellar play from "Slam-a-jimma Davis," pictured above dunking another one for the "OX." These days, you could say "Slam-a-jimma Davis" walked away mystified by his impressive hops.

Markes, Kelly Moss, and others work on their ball handling. Sullivan takes one to the basket after a steal during a men's basketball game.

'Tis the Season...

As the semester came to an end, students began burying their heads in books to cram for exams and dreaming of the fast-approaching holiday.

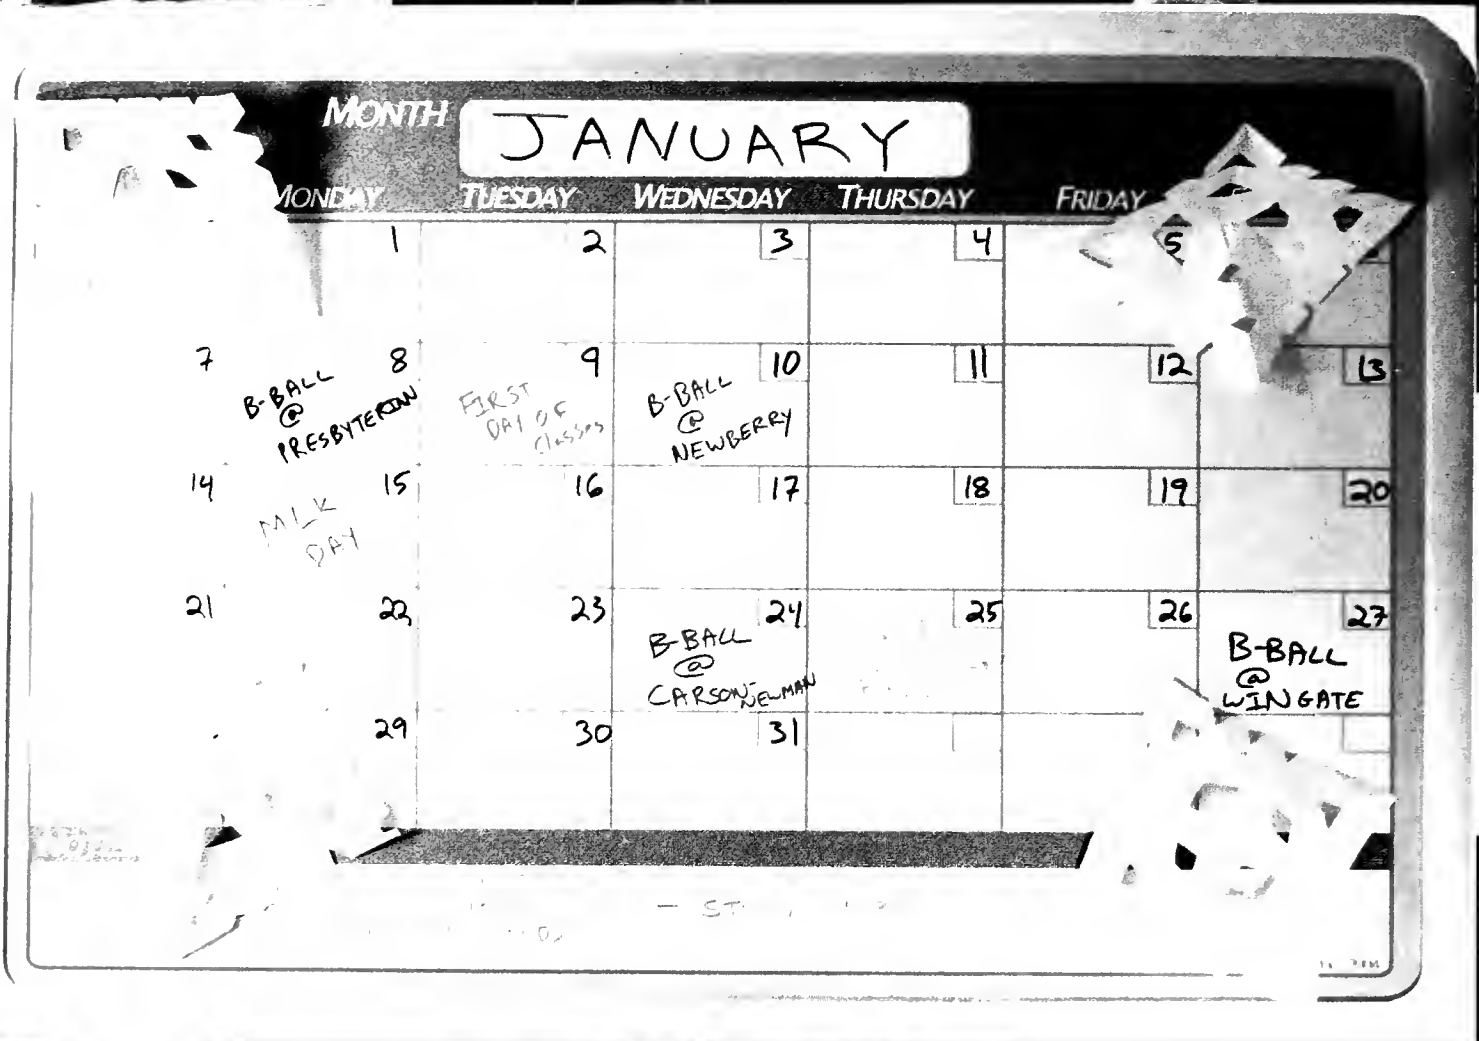

Students line up at the traditional midnight pancake breakfast served at 10:00 PM on the Friday night of every exam period.

Preceding the lighting of the trees, the A Cappella choir and L-R's musical ensembles performed the annual Christmas concert.

Los Osos / Gainesville January 27-28

The Florida Winter Classic

At their first truly national open tournament, the Florida Winter Classic in Gainesville, Los Osos played their best Ultimate ever, placing 20th out of 42 teams, & the second-smallest school in the tournament at that. (N.B. Emory called us 'Linoleum College' - for which we spanked them 13-8). Los Osos went 4-4 for the tournament, though two of the losses were one-pointers to Florida State and Georgia College & State University. Overall, a very satisfying trip.

In Class...

Dr. Abbott is the current Writer in Residence at Lenoir-Rhyne. He is teaching a Creative Writing Workshop and a class entitled "American Prophets," which offers an in-depth study of the works of Flannery O'Connor, Walker Percy and Frederick Beuchner, all of whom are religious writers.

Anthony Abbott at L-R

Abbott is a professor emeritus of English from Davidson College. His books of poems include The Girl in the Yellow Raincoat (1989); A Small Thing Like a Breath (1993); and The Search for Wonder in the Cradle of the World (2000). He was awarded the Novello Prize by the Novello Festival of Charlotte for his first novel, Leaving Maggie Hope.

Dr. Abbott answers questions at the student Q&A.

Dr. Abbott reads from his poetry collection.

An integral part of the Visiting Writer Series is student introduction of authors. Chelsie Propst introduces Dr. Abbott.

Phi Beta Lambda

The Lenoir-Rhyne chapter of the national professional business organization kept very busy this year with a variety of activities.

Just to name a few: a food drive for Good Samaritan Foodbank, a fundraiser through Jersey Mike's, a March of Dimes fundraiser, and bringing Truett Cathy, founder of Chick-fil-A, to L-R for a convocation that packed P.E. Monroe Auditorium. In addition to all of these activities, many LR Phi Beta Lambda members still found time to compete and win at state and national competitions.

January Reflections

With Christmas Break over, it's back to work for me. Here are a few New Year's resolutions that I have made (and already broken) for this semester:

- Go to bed early...no more sleeping through early classes!
- No more late night Wendy's runs with my hallmates...those really put the pounds on last semester.
- Call my mom once a week...even if it is just to ask for money.
- No more skipping class...attendance policies can kill!
- Get involved on campus.
- Make time to de-stress and hang out with friends.

Snow Day!

February 1, 2007

Classes are cancelled for today beginning with 12:10p.m. classes.

Snow was predicted for the first day of February. Many students went to bed on the last night of January with the anticipation of calling the snow line in the morning and hearing Dr. Sorenson's voice announce that classes would be cancelled. Alas, those students who did not prepare for class were disappointed to learn that, "Lenoir-Rhyne College is operating on a regular schedule today." However, throughout the day the snow picked up and afternoon classes were cancelled.

Andrew Rickel takes advantage of the day off by playing frisbee.

Visiting Writer Nikky Finney

Poet Nikky Finney visited Lenoir-Rhyne's campus on Thursday, February, 22nd. She has written three books of poetry, including Rice, which won a PEN America Open Book Award. Finney is currently an Associate Professor of Creative Writing at the University of Kentucky

Finney discusses her book Rice with students at the afternoon Question and Answer Session.

Following the discussion, Finney signs a book for a student.

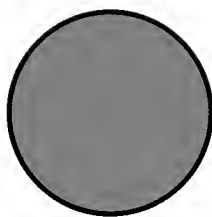

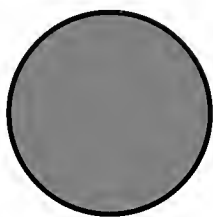

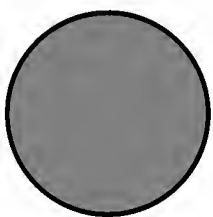

Finney talks casually with community member Patty Schenk.

Lay It Up. With a smooth flick of the wrist, Darren Allen scores two points for the Bears as members of the other team just stand by feeling disgusted as they prepare to run back down court. Plays like this boost confidence and build pride for the athletes; well, only those on the Bears' side, of course.

Baseline Buildup. With a strong drive, Josh Rudder concentrates on getting by his man. This is a tricky area to penetrate, since all inside players have been taught from a young age to "watch the baseline!" and "never let a guy go across your face." Still, it is doable, and Josh looks like he has a good head start!

Hoop There it is!

Mom, Did You See That? With his feet a good two feet off the floor Ryan Crawford completes an amazing play as he drops in the basket for a long-awaited slam dunk. Needless to say, when someone performed this feat, it was definitely quite a crowd favorite!

Jump Ball! This term enjoys a double meaning as Josh Kindred fights in midair for a loose ball. Although everybody enjoyed seeing slam dunks, fast breaks, and three pointers that spun around the rim and dropped in, it was truly these little moments that made the games exciting.

The Biggest Cheerleading Squad.

Yelling and cheering on their favorite Bears players, the famous "Shuford Psychos" form a familiar and spirited sight at every home basketball game. Long a tradition, these students showed their support all season by attending every game without fail, sitting together in a proud pack, and being as LOUD as they could!!! From the tiniest freshman girl to the brawniest senior boy, all of these fans became one as they rooted on their favorite team several times a week. Go Bears!

Box Out! (above left) All hungry for the ball, players from both teams scramble to get the rebound after a free throw. Post players practiced boxing out effectively for hours at a time, for this was one of the most important jobs they had. Also, everybody on the team shot free throws extensively to boost their percentages. There has been many a basketball game ultimately decided by the quality of the free throw shooting.

BEARS!!!!

Let's take a look at the Lenoir County girls' basketball team. I think they'll be the hoop for victories

Tip Off!

Hey, that's Genol!
The basketball team may practice hard, but fun team activities allow them to bond while enjoying themselves. Recently, the girls attended the UNC/UCC game, and this was very exciting because both of these teams

No one can stop Bear.

1. While boxing out a host of opponents, Lauren Casey gets in position for rebound. This was where post players had to really use their body strength.

3. On a jump ball, Kristen Fulford catches and shoots in one motion. Sometimes, special conditions necessitate shots like these.

5. Taking her time, Meredith Webb focuses on her corner shot. It was always preferable to have the luxury of time when shooting, especially from a long distance.

Knock it away! Hoping to intercept a pass, the Lady Bears work together to keep all of the other team's players well guarded. Man-to-man (1 person-to-person) defense, which has steadily been rising in popularity recently, was used frequently to give the team more Vertical Horizon. Leaping over her opponent, Denise Moore gazes unwaveringly at the basket. Intense concentration was needed in order to hit shots over defenders.

Christmas Bells, Those Christmas Bells. (below) Because of their schedule, the basketball players unfortunately got a very short Christmas break! To make up for this, the team lived up their Christmas spirits by celebrating together.

Down in the VALLEY

Musical provides classic American fun

There's a little black train a-comin'...

At a prayer meeting, the members of the town church lift their voices in praise. Chorus members had a variety of different roles to perform, enhancing the show.

Jenniel

Excited about being asked to the dance by her love, Gillian Colledge as Jennie Parsons runs into her intimidating father, played by Chris Sepulveda. The mix of characters was very humorous.

"All the folks are going dancing, won't you come, won't you come? All the folks are going dancing, won't you come?" All who didn't make it to see Down in the Valley missed quite an event, complete with great music, phenomenal costumes, and a world of fun. Performed by the music department, the Kurt Weill American folk opera also included a full orchestra. The cast began working on the show in August, even coming back early from Christmas Break to polish it up before the February performance! Putting this musical together were Judith Burbank, vocal instructor; Joe Sturgeon, director; Jeana Borman, accompanist; and John Ross, orchestral director. Seventeen students also had roles in this unforgettable night of musical joy.

Once again, the potential is there for Lenoir-Rhyne to have a breakout year and move back to the top half of the South Atlantic Conference. L-R returns several starters four position players and most of its pitching staff and added a recruiting class considered one of the teams best in recent memory. This combination makes the Bears (24-27 overall and 8-13 in SAC play in 2006) one to watch this year but Lenoir-Rhyne needs to avoid injuries and establish the right chemistry to make it a successful season.

The 2007 Lenoir-Rhyne Softball Team

Final:

Lenoir-Rhyne 3
[insert opponent here] 0

Lenoir-Rhyne returns all but two starters and has added five newcomers to a team looking to improve its offense to go with its vaunted pitching staff. It is hard to imagine improving on a record that is 40 games over .500 but the Bears, under eighth-year mentor and 2006 SAC Coach Of The Year Shena Hollar, have the tools to do it.

February Reflections

The Charge, like the rest of L-R's campus is covered in snow on the year's first snow day.

John and Marylin Moretz donated $5.1 million to L-R.

Whether it was the winter weather, events celebrating Black History Month, the passing of Valentine's Day, the celebration of Shuford Gym's 50th Birthday or simply studying hard, February was certainly a lively month. However, as the month neared its end, students began to feel spring break approaching. February ended in a flurry of studying for midterms and a sigh of relief at having passed half of a semester.

WOMEN MAKE MOVIES IV

On the evenings of March 1st and 2nd, the Women Make Movies mini film-festival series screened two documentary films to mark both Black History Month (February), and Women's History Month (March). On Thursday March 1st, Standing on My Sisters' Shoulders (2002) drew about 70 people, including more than 50 Lenoir-Rhyne students, to the Belk Centrum; close to 100 came to the Hickory Museum of Art to see Spike Lee's Four Little Girls (1997) on Friday the 2nd.

Our special guest for both nights was Ms. Bea Perdue, President of the Johnnetta B. Cole Global Diversity & Inclusion Institute at Bennett College for Women in Greensboro, NC. (Ms. Perdue is pictured above speaking to Friday night's audience).

This event was co-sponsored by Corning, the Women's Resource Center, the Hickory Museum of Art, and the Hickory Community Relations Council. It was planned and coordinated by Charlotte C. Williams, Assistant Professor of Sociology and Human and Community Services, Lisa Miller, Director of the Women's Resource Center, Mara Fowler, with Corning, and Paul Custer, Assistant Professor of History.

Standing on my Sisters' Shoulders

In 1965, when three women walked into the US House of Representatives in Washington D.C., they had come a very long way. Neither lawyers nor politicians, they were ordinary women from Mississippi, and descendants of African slaves. They had come to their country's capitol seeking civil rights, the first black women to be allowed in the senate chambers in nearly 100 years. A missing chapter in our nation's record of the Civil Rights movement, this powerful documentary reveals the movement in Mississippi in the 1950s and 60s from the point of view of the courageous women who lived it and emerged as its grassroots leaders. Through moving interviews and powerful archival footage, STANDING ON MY SISTERS' SHOULDERS weaves a story of commitment, passion and perseverance and tells the story of the women fought for change in Mississippi and altered the course of American history forever.

Four Little Girls

On September 15, 1963, a bomb destroyed a black church in Birmingham, Alabama, killing four young girls who were there for Sunday school. It was a crime that shocked the nation--and a defining moment in the history of America's civil-rights movement. Now, nearly 35 years later, acclaimed filmmaker Spike Lee tells the full story of the bombing, through heart-wrenching testimonials from surviving members of the victims' families, insights from Bill Cosby, Walter Cronkite, Andrew Young, Coretta Scott King and many others, and a rare and revealing interview with former Alabama Governor George Wallace.

Track and Field returned to Lenoir-Rhyne during the 2004-05 academic year, after almost two decades' absence. It was a club sport until the summer of 2006, and so this is its first year as a full varsity sport. To underwrite this, the College plans a lighted track around the soccer pitch as part of its Master Plan.

Seniors: Class of 2007

As you move on from L-R aim for success in life:

To laugh often and much;

To win the respect of intelligent people and the affection of children;

To earn the appreciation of honest critics and endure the betrayal of false friends;

To appreciate beauty, to find the best in others;

To leave the world a bit better, whether by a healthy child, a garden patch or a redeemed social condition;

To know even one life has breathed easier because you have lived.

This is to have succeeded."

-Attributed to Ralph Waldo Emerson

Among the events that hadn't happened as of March 5th was the announcement of the Commencement speaker. The senior class gift has, however, been determined. The class of '07 will give to the college benches at various places around campus.

Two of Lenoir-Rhyne's annual awards ceremonies had not occurred by press time. The Greek awards ceremony is held in the spring and honors the efforts of fraternity and sorority chapters as well as individual members. Additionally during the spring Honors Convocation students, faculty, and staff are recognized for outstanding achievements throughout the year.

Part of the nature of a Spring release yearbook is that the book is completed before the academic year comes to an end. The 2006-2007 HACAWA was finished on March 5th, over two months before commencement. This page is in recognition of events that occurred during the gap between completion of the book and its release in May.

At the beginning of the 2006-2007 academic year Dr. John Sorenson, Executive Vice President for Academic Affairs/Dean of the College, announced that he would be leaving that post to pursue teaching. A search committee worked for several months, and on March 2nd it was announced that Dr. Larry Hall, Dean of the College of Arts & Sciences, and Professor of Political Science at Belmont University in Nashville, will be joining L-R as Executive Vice-President and Dean of the College, beginning June 1st

At press time the Visiting Writers Series had three remaining events lined up: beat poet Gary Snyder, children's author and Newberry Medal winner Christopher Paul Curtis, and Big Read (in conjunction with Catawba Valley Community College, the Catawba County Library system, and the Hickory Public Library system) author James McBride.

Residence Halls (and other interesting buildings)

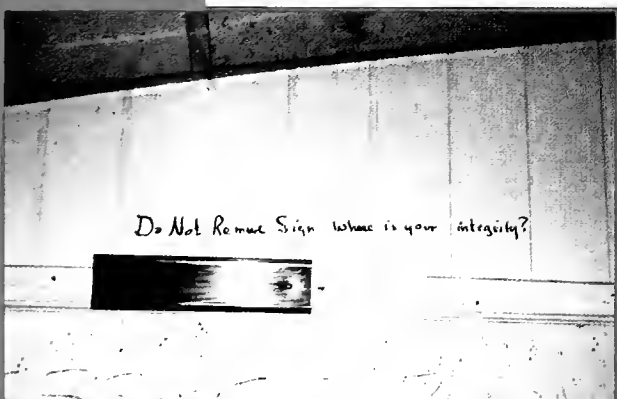

MEN'S DORMITORY—HIGHLAND HALL.

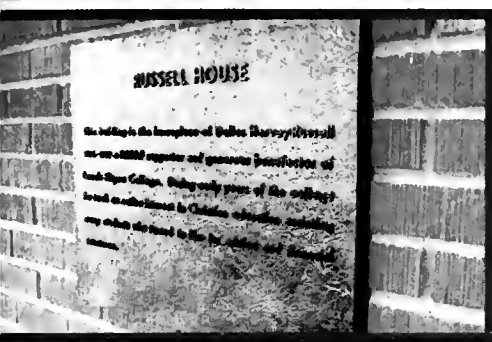

HIGHLAND HALL

Highland is a deeply mysterious presence on campus - patient, impervious, haunted, and occasionally looted by some of L-R's less reputable citizens. By far the oldest of the College's remaining buildings - but long since given up for scrap - Highland was in its last year of use as an office and classroom building in the Fall of 2003 when the Class of '07 arrived. They are, then, the last class who will have had any memories of it.

Russell House, also known as North Hall, is an integral part of the School of History, Philosophy, and Religion. The offices of Philosophy and Religion professors are found here, and classes are taught in what was once the living room of the home. The house provides a place for philosophy and religion majors to gather and discuss lofty ideas (or just bathe for the coveted porch swing). Some professors convene classes on the porch, while others hover in the foyer, urging students into class with a clearing of the throat. If, as is part of the master plan, Russell House is bulldozed to make way for an expanded Student Center, a vital part of Lenoir-Rhyne will be lost.

What's Going On?

After a long day of classes and Dance Company practice, Marcie Crdy relaxes by watching the week's episode of Grey's Anatomy. Popular television shows not only helped students take their minds off a stressful day; they also served as fuel for conversation.

Morgan Lobby

Up and Out

After a late-night Krispy Kreme donut session, Scottie Armstrong and Lamar Mowatt clean up the evidence. All of the wonderful food venues around Hickory made snacking hard to resist.

This is the best part!

Ending the night on a high note, Kelly Fuller and McKenzie Miller watch a movie on their computer. College students often preferred viewing a movie in the comfort of their rooms to going to a theatre.

Voila!

Proudly showing off her tropical room, Christy Coates brings a breeze from Hawaii into Morgan Hall. Many freshmen, particularly girls, were very excited at the prospect of decorating a new room and therefore incorporated an exciting theme.

Crunch Time

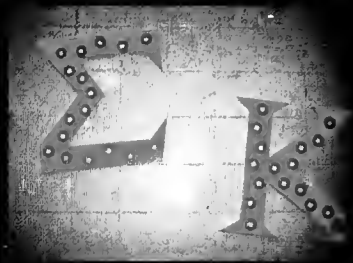

Concentrating hard on her English paper, Samantha Quave works diligently to maintain her GPA. Although arriving at college was a lot of fun, students had to keep in mind that report cards were coming and they couldn't prepare everything at the last minute.

Time out!

Taking a break from his studying, Ryan Crawford hopes that time away from his work will inspire him to remember every fact. Temporary diversions were always helpful when managing a large workload.

Faculty members for the Institute for the Conservation of Natural Resources are (l) Becky Townsend, Academic Coordinator and (r) Dr. John Brzoard, Director.

Dr. Brzoard reviews course material with a student.

The Reese Institute promotes leadership and service through a program that emphasizes regional environmental issues, economic development, and the conservation and use of natural resources.

The work of the Institute builds on the integration of the liberal arts and sciences in learning, service, and scholarship. The Institute encourages the responsible use of the natural resources of the world in a manner that allows them to be protected and enhanced for enjoyment and use by future generations.

Wells is a member of the L-R Hall of Fame and served as head coach from 1957 to 1965. He was an assistant coach to Hamilton on the 1956-57 team that opened Shuford Gym. Hamilton is an L-R Hall of Fame member who coached from 1950 to 1957. He was head coach for the first game ever played in Shuford Gym. That year's team won 24 consecutive games, finishing the season 24-2. Not shown is current Head Coach John Lentz '74, who is also an L-R Hall of Fame member. Lentz is now in his 21st year at the helm of L-R's men's basketball.

What of the College Annual?

Sometimes it is better to keep quiet: especially on things not agreeable and pleasant to the public. Yet justice demands retribution. For this reason it is deemed appropriate at this particular time and place to sincerely thank all those who have contributed toward the building of this volume. You may rest assured that you have done something toward which many will not lend a hand. Especially is the class of '30 to be commended for their most loyal support.

The movement to put the subscription price of the HACAWA on the students' bill was a big step toward renovating conditions. An examination of the annuals for the past few years proves to the reviewer he law of averages is a tangible thing—there always being that twenty-five percent who are always found lacking when weighed for support. They tell us that because we have managed to get a long without them in the past that the same can be true of the future. Yet we must not forget that general conditions change. Today the various merchant associations are beginning to treat annual advertisement with indifference when it comes to getting advertisements. It seems that in a few years advertisements in college annuals will be out of date. Under present conditions the staff has to exercise a tedious amount of care to make ends meet. From these conclusions the underclassmen who want a part in the college annual of the future had better take warning and enlist the support of their classes, or else the book will evolve to a senior publication exclusively: written and financed by them on a smaller scale.

----The Builders of the 1930 HACAWA

A few months after I became editor of the 2006-2007 HACAWA I found the facing page in the 1930 HACAWA. I could not believe what I was reading-- my predecessors of 76 years faced not only the same difficulties that the 2006-2007 staff has faced, but also predicted decline that the HACAWA has experienced over the past decade.

Like Olin and Gibbes I feel torn about voicing my frustrations. They are right to say that there are times when it is better to keep quiet on topics that are disagreeable. However, I feel that now is not one of those times. This year's staff consisted of many upperclassmen who had no previous experience working on a yearbook. We felt compelled to take a stand and make sure that we had one proper yearbook from our time at Lenoir-Rhyne. We feel that for too long the HACAWA has been ignored by the Lenoir-Rhyne administration.

A few years ago the student fee money that had been set aside so that all full time students could receive a yearbook was dedicated to Homecoming activities instead. This left the HACAWA budget depleted, and forced the HACAWA to become a substandard publication.

If Lenoir-Rhyne College is truly committed to ensuring students can produce a quality record of the year in the form of a yearbook then the HACAWA should have an operating budget that will allow it to produce a quality book for every student at L-R. We are not insolent children begging for something beyond reason, rather we are asking for a policy that had been in place as only five years ago to be reinstated. It is obvious from the scant advertisement section of this book that Olin and Gibbes were right in predicting "...in a few years advertisements in college annuals will [become] out of date."

The 2007 HACAWA was published by Jostens Publishing Company in Winston-Salem, North Carolina. Jostens' YearbookAvenue interface and Adobe InDesignCS2 were used for layout. Bill Hall served as our publishing representative. Individual student, faculty, and staff photographs were taken by Carolina photography. Phil Robinson of SportsFotos contributed many of the athletics photos, copyrighted 2006-2007. Other photography was done by staff members John Jordan, Steph Friedrich, Glenn Carroll, and Paul Custer (who designed the cover). Fonts used in this book include: Cheers Type, Olive Oil, Helvetica, Pesky, and Emilee.
